

The 13 costly dangers of choosing the wrong vehicle tracking provider

If you are looking into investing in a vehicle tracking system for your business to drive down costs, improve productivity of your mobile workforce and streamline office administration there are many factors that should be considered. We have outlined just some of the common pitfalls when choosing a vehicle tracking provider, we hope you find this useful and informative.

- 1. Be aware that a lot of tracking companies use resellers
- 2. Ensure the company you are dealing with are based in the UK
- 3. Take the time to check the trading record of the company you are dealing with
- 4. Tracking companies that sell units at a low cost
- 5. There are many companies that roll air-time into leases, be aware of this
- 6. Many companies will try to make more money by selling 'bolt-ons'
- 7. Before you sign a contract with a tracking supplier ensure they offer on-site service
- 8. There are vehicle tracking companies that charge annual licence fees
- 9. Free upgrades should be part of your contract with any vehicle tracking provider
- 10. Make sure that the company you chose offer full and on-going training
- 11. Make certain that the vehicle tracking provider you opt with have accredited engineers
- 12. Be aware of companies who use non-certificated tracking units
- 13. Ensure the company you are in talks with can provide relevant referral sites